New appliances cater to the cook in all of us

BY CHRISTINA KLEINER

Barista at home

If Starbucks is your home away from home, then the Gaggenau 400 series fully automatic coffee machine should be at the top of your wish list. With the ability to brew everything from a simple cup of coffee to a custom espresso or cappuccino, this built-in machine is for the connoisseur in all of us. The machine can monitor coffee bean, water and milk levels and hold up to eight personalized drink configurations.

Refrigerator revolution

Bosch has completely transformed its refrigeration portfolio with the launch of its freestanding French Door Bottom Mount refrigerator collection. The new freestanding refrigerator offers the look of a built-in unit thanks to the 24-inch deep counter depth design, while the length of the door extends fully to the ground, offering seamless integration into the kitchen. Stainless steel details, both inside and outside, paired up with a plethora of cutting edge technological advances to keep your food fresher for longer periods of time, make this a powerhouse appliance.

Next generation dishwashing

Next to folding laundry, washing dishes might be the most hated chore in the house. But thanks to the new Cove dishwasher, the newest brand from Sub-Zero and Wolf, washing dishes might not be the bane of your existence. The new dishwasher offers 43 jets, three spray arms and more than 200 cycle options that all work together in virtual silence. The sleek stainless look blends in perfectly with its surroundings, although you can also disguise it behind a cabinet panel for a seamless design.

Thinking green

The Big Chill wants you to think beyond stainless steel and matte black. The appliance manufacturer's Retro collection comes in more than 200 custom colors, including this year's newest introduction—Moss Green. The nature-inspired hue is versatile enough to work in any kitchen design and is the perfect solution for those of you wanting to add a little personality to your space.

Fire up the grill

Grilling season is almost upon us and Kalamazoo has outdoor kitchens on the mind. Its new Arcadia Cabinetry Series is the perfect accompaniment for the ultimate grilling area. The new line features more options and colors in cabinet drawers, as well as 12-inch pullout racks to house grilling tools and 36-inch double door base cabinets for storing cookware and serving platters. The Arcadia line is also the perfect base for a Kalamazoo Gaucho Grill with a 30-inch spoked wheel for the ultimate in wood-fired grilling.

Don't forget your glasses

The perfect addition to a wet bar or game room, Thermador's Glass Care Center is a dishwasher designed specifically for glassware. The tine-less rubber racks allow for plenty of space for glassware of various shapes and sizes. With a load capacity of up to 26 large wine glasses, you no longer have to worry about having enough clean glassware for large parties. 🌱
